

Terrorism, conflict, and disaster drive U.S. news to look abroad

U.S. TV news offers limited coverage on events taking place outside of the country. This coverage has largely been driven by terrorism (i.e., attacks in France), conflict (i.e., Iraq, Syria, and Iran), and natural disasters (i.e., the Philippines).